Coffee and energy drinks are great for people who need a boost. They both provide energy, but they're different in how they work, taste, and affect your body. Let's see which drink is best for you!

First, consider their ¹. Coffee is made from ² coffee beans, which are grown in regions like South America and Africa. You brew it with hot water, and it has been around for centuries. Energy drinks are a modern creation. Companies mix things like caffeine, sugar, and vitamins ³ to make energy drinks.

Their taste also sets them apart. Coffee is mostly ⁴, though it can be softened with milk or sugar for a pleasant ⁵. It can be served hot or cold, and a warm ⁶ of coffee often feels like a hug. Energy drinks are cold, carbonated, and sweet, like soda. Some enjoy their candy-like flavor, while others might find it too strong.
